Airfield of ALTENBURG15 June 1949

1. The ALTENBURG (N 51/K 27) airfield was occupied by 30 twin-engine transport DC 3 aircraft. These aircraft were observed about 5:30 p.m. approaching the airfield in the following formation:

Three squadrons of eight aircraft each, flying in wedge formation (distance between squadrons: 3,300 feet) followed by a flight of five planes. The formation was followed by an individual plane at a distance of 3,300 feet. The leading aircraft of each squadron and the last plane of the formation had no camouflage paint. The planes of the formation landed individually within thirty-two minutes.

21 June 1949

3. About 20 twin-engine transport aircraft with very large rudder assembly and a dark green coat of camouflage paint were observed at the ALTENBURG airfield. One of the parked aircraft was painted silver-grey. Other aircraft of the same type were observed in the air. The truck, [REDACTED] was seen hauling vegetables to the airfield.

4. Comment:

The report shows that the air transport unit, which had been observed in ALTENBURG during recent months, is still there. This unit is employed chiefly for the transport of army units, apparently in connection with the army maneuvers held in Thuringia. The [REDACTED] mentioned in paragraph 3 shows that the observed air transport unit is identical to that previously located in STRAUSBERG.
